JOLLY PRISONERS

Quintet Safely Landed at State Prison After Having Been Convicted in Local Court

There was a party of eight, a quintet of recently convicted men in the Madison county circuit court, and three prisoners, left Thursday for Frankfort, where the prisoners will serve from one to 18 years for various crimes committed in this county. The list follows:

Jonh Keeton, convicted and sentenced to a term of 2 years in prison for the killing of Ben Powell, at the carnival grounds some time ago.

Stanley Rogers, charged with stealing chickens, convicted during the May term of court and held pending further investigation of the case after his trial during the summer.

Steve Stevens, charged and convicted on two charges, one having been read to him after hearing the testimony in one of the cases. He received, according to the docket, one year for each offense. however, will M. Talking About and Want Recognition From City

"Residents and properly owners on Sunset avenue want to be rec-

This somewhat startling excla, mation came from a member of the city council Thursday night at the regular meeting, and there was consternation. Mayor Evans as well as others looked about, pinched themselves and were expecting to hear someone yell, "all out, end of the line," when someone called out, "Poosey Ridge."

There was a little enlightenment upon the subject. Members of the audience and city officials looked again at one another knowingly and reassuringly, for they realized they were still in the council chamber.

"Thurman avenue," quoth the third, after some snickering and suppressed laughter, whereupon Mayor Evans said there was no joke about it at all, and he got real serious for a moment; then said he really believed his wife had figured in a conspiracy to thoroughfare originally known as Thurman avenue, dubbed "Poosey Ridge" by the mayor, and called Sunset avenue with pride by the

Folks There Know What They're Ordinance Regarding Parking of Machines and Leaky Autos To Be Enforced Now

There have been two city ordinances pertaining to parking of automobiles and allowing the same to remain on paved streets in a leaky condition, badly abused during the past two weeks, according to reports of city officials, and some information was sought by Mayor Evans at the regular meeting of the council regarding the time when the ordinances were to be strictly enforced. He stated that this matter had been left to the judgment of the police, and while he found that there had been no accidents nor serious collisions, he believed the time was ripe for the stopping of this practice. However, he added that the matter had been left to the police. Chief of Police Claud Devore mentioned the fact that it was a difficult thing to bring about the enforcement of a big list of new at one time. This was accepted as a verp true statement and it is believed the police know more about it than anyone else. Elaborate Affair at Home of Prominent Madison Couple -Features of Event

Fifty years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Gentry were united marriage, and Wednesday they celebrated their wedding anniversary at their elegant home on the Irvine pike, three miles from the city, in an elaborate manner. It was one of the most auspicious golden wedding celebrations recorded in Madison county for years and there were many friends and relatives from a distance in attendance

The Gentry home was thrown open to visitors at an early hour and the dinner, a three course affair and a feature of the day, as well as the event, was most elaborate consisting of all obtainable in the way of dainty and wholesome refreshments. The cake, finished with icing, presented colors of red and gold which blended harmoniously. The interior of the rooms were also decorated in these

Mr. and Mrs. Gentry entertained in a royal manner and the day proved a most delightful one to the large num ber of guests, which included four who were in attendance at the wedding of the host and hostess. They were Mr. and Mrs. Gideon Taylor, Mrs. Lucy Ann Gentry and Mr. Geo.

Number of Farms In Counties-How They Stand-Something About Stock, Etc.

There are 270,676 farms in the state of Kentucky in 1920, according to the 14th census of the United States Agricultural Depart-ment, a decided decrease over that for 1910, showing much property bought and extension of farming upon the part of those who had settled here previous to that time. According to the manner of com-pilation, a "farm" for census purposes, is all the land which is directly farmed by one person, either by his own labor or with the assistance of his household or hired help. When a land owner has one or more tenant renters, croppers or managers, the land operated by each is considered a farm. In this section of the state, there are more farms in Madison county than another of the adjoining or nearby counties, there being 3,557, for this county, while Lincoln is the nearest county with 2,323. Madison almost trebles other surrounding counties, as the following figures will show: Boyle, 1,394; Clark, 1,656; Es-aill, 1,832; Fayette, 1,978; Garrard 1,929; Jessamine, 1,534, Rockcas-

In 1910, Madison county led by a small margin, and has shown a steady decrease, indicating progressiveness in the way of extended holdings and adding tenants. A steady progress is shown by the reports of production and the development of some products has been wonderful.

Reports issued by other bulletins indicate that tobacco has made the most rapid stride of any home grown product, while the cattle and horses have increased to a remarabble extent.

Quality in horses raised in Kentucky, as well as cattle, hogs and mules, also dogs and chickens. There was a period for several years that turkey raising developed to an unusual degree, however, ed to an unusual degree, however, and coline shown later.
